

201 MIDTERM 2020

Maintaining a document trail in all interactions between an engineer and their client demonstrates that the engineer is acting _____.

The legal obligation for an engineer to act in the positive interests of their client is due to their _____ relationship.

If you want result B then do A is a statement of Deontological Theory.

Ethical reasoning contains three dimensions of reflecting on the choices, analyzing the choice one faces and finally making the choice.

Organizational _____ can be defined as the study of what people think, feel, and do within organizations.

_____ is the use of power and influence to further personal interest.

A _____ style of leadership is seen when leaders do not implement a coherent mission in the organization.

Whistleblowing is most likely

According to Aristotle's Virtue Theory, the best guide to an ethical decision is assessing the virtuousness of its consequence.

Relying on a role model and thinking of what the role model would do when faced with a decision is a good example of

The values and mental models that govern how people think and act in an organization reflect its

An act of commission is the act of neglecting to reveal a relevant event of circumstance.

The physical organization of office space into cubicles and offices is an indication of an organization's ethical status.

An engineer is forbidden from providing their services for free.

Clients inspect the competence of professionals in an Ideal Type model of professionals.

How employees relate to the chain of commands and information in an organization arises from the nature of its

The Québec's Code of Ethics for Engineers directs engineers to develop a _____ themselves and their client (or employer)

However good the consequences, if the action chosen is wrong is not a sufficient justification for an action is a statement of

A key shortcoming of Kant's Duty theory is that the focus on the individual prevents the theory from addressing the good of society.

_____ drives individual behaviour by causing them to act or not act in a particular fashion.

An engineer receiving fees for services provided from anyone other than a client does not negatively affect trust building obligations.

A _____ organizational structure is one where employees are organized around specific knowledge or resources.

The first step in analyzing choices in the professional context is identifying relevant moral _____ in the choice.

A _____ organizational structure is one where employees are organized around specific knowledge or resources.

Centralization refers to the number of people with decision-making authority in an organization.